

Songs From Nowhere (Volume Five: The Ballad of the Golden Eagle) (2015)

The first fully produced album in years, with some really strong writing too. Has live recorded guitar/vocal core, with bass, cello, melodica, etc

Songs From Nowhere (Volume Four: The Day My Love Went Down) (2014)

Another set of live recorded basement tracks (one song had some minimal synth added) during yet another turbulent period.

Songs From Nowhere (Volume Three: Worth Hoping For) (2013)

Songs written and recorded in the middle of nowhere in a basement by Peter Dickson. Everything on this album is live recorded with one mic. Most of it is acoustic guitar or harmonica with vocals, one song is banjo with vocals. Enjoy, there are some really good songs!

Songs written during a turbulent period. Recorded at Naesmos Kayak Cove Kayak shack. Multitrack recording, using guitars, found percussion, and an analog synth. Zack McCarter cowrote lyrics for the title track and played lead guitar on Breakdown Sunrise, otherwise written and performed by Peter Dickson.

Rite of Copy (2013)

Scratch recordings done for copyright purposes prior to recording of Volume 2. This occurred in summer 2012, they were released in spring of 2013. Some of the material is really old- some of the songs on "Early Days" were written in 2004 and 2005.

Songs From Nowhere (Volume One: Westbound Train) (2011)

First album. A lot of experimentation was going on during the recording process. Some very solid songs are here.
